Some of the Wonders of the Niagara Falls.

This Point of Interest to the World Described by a Local Tourist.

Everyone Should See the Place.

The Curiosities of America are Worth Seeing before Traveling Abroad.

There is nothing in the western hemisphere, we are told equal in the way of a Natural wonder, one of God's master pieces of creation, Niagara Falls. Much has been written of its grandeur and sublimity, but no humor tongue can fully describe its magnificence! Of course imagination is able to grasp the idea of its vastness through the medium of word pictures, that are within themselves harmonious, but not until the human eye falls upon the boiling. tossing, leaping, swirling waters, dashing in irresistable force, and heaving the tumult and thuderous roar of the mighty cataract, can he fully appreciate the grandeur of this superb natural wonder.

Between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, about twewty miles distance from Buffalo is located Niagara Falls. Niagara river is (36) thirty six miles long and has a total fall of three hundred and thirty feet as follows; Smaller rapids above the falls, 15 feet, principal fall 160 feet, large rapids and through the great gorge 100 ft. The river divides at the precipice forming Goat island with the American Falls on one side and the Horse Shoe Falls on the other, Over 100 views can be taken each giving some point of advantage. Goat island forms part of the Reservation grounds, and provides elegant drive ways and sidewalks along the very brink of the river, being protected of course by guard rails. Pedestrians can get the better view from Goat island of the falls as some points can be reached only on foot. The greatest body of water gushes over Horse Shoe Falls, the estimated depth being 20 feet. The water seems to rush toward the center from both sides and it is in this angle that the water from accumulation and falling upon a massive rock, half way down the precipice. dashes itself back again at regular intervals high in the air from 50 to 160 feet for the winds to carry the spray down the river and far accross on the Canadian shore which appears like a heavy rain storm and makes the use of umbrellas and rubber coats a necessity.

During the sunshine of day, a magnificent rainbow is playing across the face of the fall, occasionally widening so that the whole sweep ot its prismatic beauty covers the fatl like a projecting arch of glory. On the Canadian side, just opposite this fall, and on the heights near "Loretto Academy" the best view can be obtained. New York Central and Lake Shore through trains stop directly opposite the falls to allow passengers to view this gorgeous sight. Just here, I might remark that this is historic ground, for just a mile west on the Niagara, within the sound of the cataract, the Battle of Runday's Lane was fought between the British aud American forces July 25, 1814 and Miller replied "I'll try sir".

The whirlpool is a mile below the rapids and the force of the water from the great fall of 100 feet in the river pouring into this basin rises it in the middle to a distance of three feet above outer surface. The whirlpool is the result of a mighty body of water rushing into a confined space and seeking an outlet.

Bodies driftwood etc. must eventually find its wav to the whirlpool, it is either thrown out on the bank or is carried by the outlet down to where the river empties into Lake Ontario. The average depth of the river is 180 feet and velocity of current through the great rapids is about 30 miles per hour. The only suspension bridge crossing the river, connects Lewiston on the American side with Queenstown Heights on the Canadian side. Gen Brock's monument, 200 feet high stands on Queenstown Heights dedicated to the memory of Gen. Brock and those who fell with him Oct 13, 1812

Lewiston is also an historical point and ancient village. The old Frontier House where the magic statesman Daniel Webster used to appear in court; and the old burying grounds, where lie the soldiers dead of the battle of Queenstown Height. The Cave of the Winds is a natural cavern behind the central fall caused by the soft strata of rock yielding more readily to the mighty water than limestone rock just 100 feet above. The visitor protected by a rubber suit passes between the American and Central fall and decending a flight of stairs stands in the Cave of the Winds upon a natural rock floor.

From this point as nowhere else is realized the terrific, irresistable power of this falling water, while the sublimity and grandeur of this marvel of Nature's handiwork fills the beholder with amazemen and inspires him with reverence for the Grert Artificer who fashioned it all. The cave derives its name from the constant pressure of atmosphere causec by the reflex of the falling water which resembles a storm of great violence.

No trip is complete unless the visitor goes out on "The Maid of the Mist.' This is reached by an incline railway operated by water power from Niagara river.

To take this trip one must don a rubber suit and cap covering the head and neck completely expect eyes and nose. This steamer offords a minature trip on an ocean steamer as the water is so rugged the boat surges to and fro upon the biliows. The "Maid" moves along the base of The American and Horse Shoe Falls all the spray falls heavy and the water drips off the gaaments, equal to a terrific rain storm. The trip is mildly exciting and none the less invigorating as a ride on the "Maid of the Mist" is equal to a shower bath.

Much might be written but the only way to do it justice is to visit this most beautiful scenic point in the world as the estimatek number of tourists from all part of the world, that visit Niagara anuually is 1,000,000.

LongLive The King!

s the popular cry throughout European countries; while in American, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of whitch Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine. Truro, Mass., says: "it never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. The Charming Woman is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. FLAG DAY.

Your flag and my flag—
  And how it flies to-day!
In your land and my land,
  And half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red,
  The stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—
  The good forefathers' dream;
Sky blue and true blue, with stars to shine
    aright—
The gloried guidon of the day, a shelter through the night.

Your flag and my flag!
  And, oh, how much it holds!
Your land and my land,
  Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart
  Beat quicker at the sight—
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed,
  Red and blue and white.
The one flag—the great flag—the flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue!

Your flag and my flag—
  To every star and stripe
The drums beat as hearts beat,
  And fifers shrilly pipe.
Your flag and my flag—
  A blessing in the sky!
Your hope and my hope—
  It never hid a lie!
Home land and far land, and half the world around,
Old Glory hears the great salute and flutters to the sound!

Jack Gridley's Celebration

JACK GRIDLEY crawled through a hole in the fence back of his home and cautiously tiptoed toward the house. The sun was higher than Jack had intended it should be when he returned; when he had slipped out of the back door, just before midnight, with two big cannon crackers and his pockets full of smaller ones, and had joined Bill Ainsley, to set the church bell wildly ringing, on the stroke of 12, in joyous time honored salutation to the glorious Fourth, he had planned to be back in his room and in bed before the sun rose.

He was none too soon, for even as he slipped his jacket off preparatory to jumping into bed, Miss Ann's thin, cracked voice rang up the narrow stairway: "Jack, you can get up now!" "Yes'm," was the meek reply.

Jack filled his pockets with the remainder of his crackers and presented himself in the kitchen. Jack Gridley was motherless, and his father, a commercial traveler, had found a home for the boy with Miss Ann Hobart.

"Now, suppose," continued Miss Ann, "that you give the two large crackers to me for safe keeping; I am afraid the temptation to fire them will be too great otherwise." Jack grew red in the face, and hastily gulped down a glass of milk. "Can't, they're busted," he said.

"You mean they are broken. But you haven't told me how you broke them," continued Miss Ann, sweetly. "I—I—I fired 'em!" Jack blurted the truth out manfully. "John Gridley! what do you mean?" All the sweetness was gone from Miss Ann now. "You haven't fired a cracker since you rose this morning. Now when did you fire those big ones? Tell me the truth instantly!"

"Last night," said Jack, feebly. "At what time last night?" "I don't know jes' what time," was the weak reply. "John Gridley, look me in the face and tell me what time you left this house." The jig was up and Jack knew it. "Well, if you must know, it was a few minutes of 12," he said.

"Hand me those crackers, every one you've got. Now, John Gridley, don't you stir foot outside of the yard this day. Now go out to the woodpile and saw until I tell you to stop."

Poor Jack! He wouldn't give Miss Ann the satisfaction of knowing how bad he felt, but when his stint of wood was finished, he fled to the barn and up in a dark corner of the haymow he had his cry out with only the sympathetic whinny of old Nell in the stall below for comfort. All the morning he had heard the pop, pop of crackers, and later the circus band, as the procession paraded the streets; he had even caught just a glimpse of the parade as it entered the tent, for the circus had pitched not far from Miss Ann's house. This was the first circus in Easthampton for years, and Jack had set his heart on going. Miss Ann strongly disapproved of circuses, but Jack had written to his father and obtained consent, providing he was a good boy, and now—Jack wept afresh. Most of all he wanted to see the elephant (it was a small circus and had but one of the huge pachyderms).

About 3 o'clock Miss Ann relented to the extent of allowing him to have his crackers, and in the noise of these he tried to drown out the noise of the circus band that floated out from the big dingy canvas so near and yet so far. Suddenly it flashed into his head that he might send up crackers on his kite. Why not?

Jack took the biggest cracker that he had, one he had been saving for a grand climax, made an extra long fuse, attached it in the usual way and then gave the kite all the string he had. Up, up, up she sailed until she floated fairly over the circus tents. Jack heard it explode, followed instantly by a scream that made Jack's hair rise. Out from behind the tent shot a huge black beast, tearing across the fields with awkward, lumbering strides, but wonderfully fast. It was the elephant! With trunk thrown up and back of its head and trumpeting shrilly, it made straight toward Jack, smashing down the rail fences in its path as if they were straws, his keeper in full pursuit, hopelessly distanced. From the big tent began to pour out a strange motley crowd of townspeople, painted clowns and scantily dressed bareback riders to see what had happened. For a moment Jack, too frightened to move, watched the huge beast bearing down upon him, then he fled to the hayloft in the barn, and through a crack watched the mad race. Then the runaway caught sight of the big, wide open barn doors (Miss Ann had told Jack to close them that afternoon) and probably seeing safety in the dark recesses of the barn, rushed in, where he stood trumpeting and trembling with fright. Gradually the elephant grew quieter and Jack's courage began to come back. Presently he noticed the long trunk feeling along the edge of the mow and examining the new quarters, so he beat a retreat once more. The new hay was not yet in, and the small amount of old hay left was at the back of the mow. A rustling at the edge of it caught his attention and he made out the elephant's trunk stretching for the hay, which it could not reach. Cautiously he held out a wisp. It was taken and the trunk disappeared. A minute later it was back again. So Jack continued to feed the elephant, and growing bolder, crawled to the edge again, having a bundle of hay in his hands. This time the elephant saw him and before he could retreat the big trunk had caught him and deftly, but gently, lifted him down. The hay he still held, and timidly offering it, it was promptly accepted.

A few minutes later the keeper opened the doors, to find to his astonishment his big charge and a small boy on the best of terms, and when the elephant was ordered out, he refused to move without Jack. "Pick him up, Mike," ordered the keeper, so, gently, the elephant placed Jack on his back and the procession started for the circus tent once more, Jack the envy of all the boys in the village, and Miss Ann realizing her helplessness in the situation.

The show settled for the broken fences, but Miss Ann still retains her prejudice against circuses. As for Jack, to this day no one knows who dropped the cracker in front of Mike. Jack looks back to that Fourth, when the circus came to him because he could not go to it, as the greatest celebration he ever had.

WARREN'S ADDRESS.

Stand! the ground's your own, my braves!
Will ye give it up to slaves?
Will ye look for greener graves?
  Hope ye mercy still?
What's the mercy despots feel?
Hear it in that battle-peal!
Read it on yon bristling steel!

Ask it—ye who will.
Fear ye foes who kill for hire?
Will ye to your homes retire?
Look behind you!—they're afire!
  And before you, see
Who have done it! From the vale
On they come!—And will ye quail?
Leaden rain and iron hail
  Let their welcome be!

In the God of battles trust!
Die we may—and die we must;
But, oh, where can dust to dust
  Be consigned so well?
As where Heaven its dews shall shed
On the martyred patriot's bed,
And the rocks shall raise their head
  Of his deeds to tell?

—John Pierpont.

THE FOUNDING OF THE UNION.

July 4, 1776.

Clang! Clang! the brazen notes fall on the air,
  Proclaiming liberty throughout the land;
Lo! a new nation springs to life this day,
  And exultation reigns on every hand;
Weak in the present, and yet strong enough
  To wrest its birthright from a tyrant king.
Who can foretell the glory and the power
  That to this infant Union years shall bring?

ROCKFELLERS SUBPOENAED

Judge Landis, of Chicago, Demands Facts About the Standard Oil.

Court's Action is the Result of a Refusal of Attorneys to Supply Financial Information Requested.

Chicago.—Subpoenas were issued in the United States District Court for the leading officers of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Subpoenas were also issued for the officers of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

The officials of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, for whom summons were issued, are John D. Rockefeller, president; William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold and Henry H. Rogers, vice-presidents; W. H. Tilford, treasurer; C. M. Pratt, secretary; William P. Howe, assistant treasurer, and Charles T. White, assistant secretary.

The following officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana were also summoned: J. A. Moffett, president; W. P. Cowan, vice-president, and G. W. Stahl, secretary and treasurer. H. E. Felton, president of the Union Tank Line, and F. A. Wan, former general freight agent of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, were also served with subpoenas.

The issuance of the subpoenas was the direct result of the refusal of the attorneys of the Standard Oil Company to supply Judge Landis of the court with information he requested regarding the financial condition of the company. The attorneys declared that the information should have been sought at the time of the trial, and declared that the request of Judge Landis was extra-judicial and unwarranted. The Judge replied that he was entitled to the information and intended to have it, and directed District Attorney Sims to prepare subpoenas for such officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or for any of the officers of the controlling corporation of the Standard Oil Company who might, in the opinion of the District Attorney, have the information desired by the Court.

The Standard Oil Company was indicted in the Federal court on the charge of using illegal freight rates tendered to it by the Chicago and Alton road, and after a long trial was found guilty on 1462 counts of the indictment.

A maximum fine of $20,000 is allowed on each count of the indictment, making a total possible fine against the company of $29,240,000. Before passing sentence on the company Judge Landis announced that it was his custom to proportion the fine according to the financial condition of the person or corporation convicted, and asked for specific information regarding the financial condition of the Standard Oil Company. This information he has been unable to obtain, and the subpoenas issued were the consequence.

DYNAMITE KILLS EIGHT.

Two Americans and Six Italians Are Blown to Pieces by Explosion.

Houston, Va.—As the result of the premature explosion of a box of dynamite, near Tola, eight persons were killed and six others seriously injured.

Two Americans killed were Edward Clarke, of Charlotte County, fireman of a donkey engine, and Cornelius Sullivan, of Lamont, Ill., foreman of the McDermott Construction Company, of Chicago, which has the contract for the construction of a part of the Tidewater Railway. The six others killed were Italian workmen.

The accident happened in a deep railroad cut where about fifteen men were engaged. About fifty pounds of dynamite exploded. The explosion was heard for miles around and nearby houses were damaged by the terrific shock.

AUTOMOBILE WRECK AT YALE.

D. L. Oliver, of Pittsburg, Was Killed Instantly.

New Haven, Conn.—His head and body crushed together, D. Leet Oliver, twenty-one years old, a Yale undergraduate, and who a few years ago inherited several millions from his father, J. B. Oliver, a Pittsburg ironmaster, was instantly killed under his racing automobile, which shot over the low side rail of an iron bridge four miles from here and landed bottom up on the bank of a little creek. Two other undergraduates, W. Strothers Jones, of Red Bank, N. J., and John A. C. Colston, of Baltimore, were badly hurt. Ernest Hudson, a former Yale man, and who was Oliver's guest for the commencement, escaped with a few slight cuts and bruises.

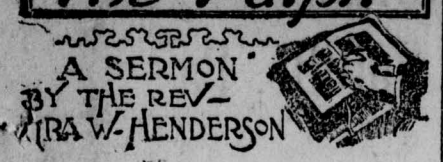
Judge Aids Lovings.

Basing his opinion upon the ruling of Justice Fitzgerald in the trial of Harry Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, Judge Barksdale, at Houston, Va., refused to permit the introduction of a word of evidence tending to disprove the story of Miss Elizabeth Loving, whose testimony is the mainstay in the defense of her father, former Judge William G. Loving, manager of Thomas F. Ryan's Virginia estate, on trial for the shooting of Theodore Estes.

Oklahoma Congressman Named.

The Democrats of the Fifth Oklahoma District nominated Scott Ferris for Congress on the 296th ballot.

The Pulpit



Subject: Profanity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the theme "Profanity," the Rev. Ira W. Wemmel Henderson, pastor, took as his text Exodus 20:7, "Thou salt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain." He said:

If there is anything that is disgusting it is unbridled profanity. And the prevalence of useless, pointless, unjustified swearing merits the attention not alone of the Church but also of the civil authorities whose duty it is to keep the moral atmosphere of this and every other community free of verbal pollution. The command ought to be obeyed and the civil law on the point ought to be enforced. The silly fool who spreads the germs of diphtheria or typhoid or smallpox broadcast throughout the community will soon feel the iron hand of the law laid heavy on his shoulders and he ought very properly be put under lock and key until sanity has returned; but any man without a sense of moral respectability or even elementary decency may saturate the moral atmosphere, in which we have to live and to rear our youth, with all manner of verbal disease and the average policeman will but smile or perhaps add to the sum total of uncleanness. The man who has such poverty of language and such an absolute lack of common sense that profanity is to him the one way to dignify and emphasize the expression of ideas, should be jailed with that other man who endangers our physical health. The third commandment has, we know from experience, a very practical and forcible application to this day. Nowhere may we escape the man of unwholesome speech. Men with gray locks and boys just out of kilts, men who should know better and boys who must learn the disgrace of profligate language if they are ever to amount to much in life, both and all are guilty of the most shameful depravities of speech. As things stand to-day, no man can rear a child with a pure mind. We walk our streets and curses everywhere fill the air and fall upon our ears. Does a horse balk the Almighty is invoked to move him. Is the drayman delayed a moment he curses the fellow just ahead. It is impossible to sit by an open window on any prominent thoroughfare without being morally poisoned. Does the boss in the shop wish to hurry up the men the vilest of language is the means he uses to set speed to hand and mind. Not once but hundreds of times I have seen foul mouthed inspectors, overseers and gang bosses invoke the maledictions of heaven and hell upon poor dumb driven brutes made in the image of the Maker, lest forsooth they straighten weary toil bent backs to sieze a moment's rest.

Of course these very men will tell you that they have no desire to dishonor God nor to offend our moral sensibilities. They lay it to habit, thoughtlessness and a hundred other causes. I am convinced myself that much of the swearing of the day is due to thoughtlessness rather than to wilful sin. And yet I have seen the same men take more liberties with the name of Almighty God than I would allow them to take or they would dare to take with my name—either thoughtlessly or wilfully.

Thoughtlessness is no excuse. God gave us brains and tongues, and it is our duty to exercise our wills and to use our tongues for the expression of worthy thought alone. Of course men don't think, that is to say, the most of them do not, for if they did swearing would go by the board to a short and sure death. To plead thoughtlessness in extenuation of sin is to play the baby-act. Men should think and cut the cursing out.

The third commandment has solid sense behind it, as have all of God's commands. The misuse of the name of God, or of the name of our Lord, profanity, swearing, cursing, all should be abhorred for several good and sufficient reasons.

Profanity is unnecessary, unmanly, indecent, immoral, ungodly. There are five good reasons why it should be put aside.

Profanity is unnecessary. A curse never prove a point. It rather demonstrated the paucity of thought of the swearer. Oaths never convince a person of the validity or strength of an argument, but they do show up the poverty of language of the man who uses them. Curses never made any workman do better work; they have, however, been the excuse for many a murder. Sense and no swear words will unravel many a perplexing problem. The name of God is to be hallowed not hooted on the streets. The name of Jesus is worthy of reverence and adoration; its misuse damns not the man who is maligned but the curser. There is no problem in life that can not be solved without curses. Sense, industry, wise reasoning and good judgment will settle any difficulty. Profanity is useless, unnecessary and wholly unprofitable.

Then, too, profanity is unmanly. Many boys seem to have the idea that the one sure sign of manliness is to be able to swear with vigor, proficiency and volume. There never was a greater mistake in the world. Instead of being a sign of manliness it is a sure mark of moral instability and bad manners. It reflects small credit either upon the youth himself or upon the family whom he represents. For an educated youth it is a denial of the value of education and mental growth. In any man, educated or ignorant, it is degrading and altogether unmanly. Manliness is purity, efficiency, power, forcefulness. The curse is impure, inefficient either for expression or proof, powerless to do productive work, forceful in no way. By these tests it is unmanly.

Profanity is indecent. That which is decent is befitting, becoming, honorable. I will leave it to the judgment of the citizens of this or any city to decide how much swearing befits a normal, rational human being. Creatures of reason as we are, we find that the curse flies in the face of sober thought. Used as we are to logical processes we find the curse devoid of logic. Profanity reeks with sulphur and sends Satan to our hearts. It is utterly unbefitting and unbecoming.

To say that it is dishonorable is just to begin the damning count against profanity. The curse is without honor for it is used only to spread dishonor. It looks never toward God but rather uses His name to invoke the aid of the powers of hell. It is dishonorable from start to finish and indecency marks it as her own.

But one of the two worst things about profanity is that it is immoral, root, branch, tree and fruit. Catering as it does to all that is low in man, hand and bond servant as it is to all the hosts of sin, profanity disintegrates the unity of individual personality. No man can be profane without dishonoring God and damaging himself. We cannot give vent in word to the evil that is in us without spreading contamination not only through our own lives but also through the lives of men and women all about us. Profanity is unclean, it strikes at the foundations of morality. It undermines the sense of honor and destroys the faculty of cool, deliberate judgment; under no circumstances is it susceptible of justification and its immorality is unquestionably a fact.

But the last and the worst charge that may be upheld against profanity is that it is ungodly. "Thou shall love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart and mind and soul," says our Father. The curse is heartless and it destroys our finer faculties do we give it time. Under its blighting influence the power of mental appreciation of the glories of God will be lost. It is soulless to the last extreme. How can a man be godly while cursing the children of God in the name of the Father who has given them life? How can a man be godly when the springs of sin are rushing from his mouth? Ah, no! Profanity is ungodly. It shames God and disgraces man. It reviles the Father and degrades His sons. God is good but profanity is evil. God is kind but the curse is verbal murder. God is truth but the curse cares not for truth.

Unnecessary, unmanly, indecent, immoral and ungodly profanity is the most frequent as the most insidious of the sins of the tongue. And yet bad as it is when used by men, it is most abhorrent when coming from the lips of a woman. Not that it is morally any worse, but that it sounds worse. If you really want to become positively assured of the horridness of profamity you need but hear a woman curse.

We need to-day a strict insistence upon cleanliness of language. No man can be a friend of Jesus who is ungodly in his talk. Christ proved divinely the possibility of forceful speaking without the use of profanity. And to-day men are most forceful, most manly, most convincing when they do not swear.

Pull Your Boat Up Stream.

To drift with the current or to pull against it—this is the problem which is born anew with each new day. Some of our daily duties are easy to perform. We turn to them as easily and naturally as water seeks a level. There is no conscious expenditure of will-power. There is no resistance in our nature that must be overcome. But these are the duties of the day in whose performance there is found the least merit.

Fortunately for us we cannot, or at least dare not, always drift. Each day has its tasks which test the will and try the heart. Their performance requires stern determination. They afford the best discipline and develop the latent powers of the soul. Inclination is not always—in fact, not often—a true test of the thing we ought to do first.

Sometimes it has been a source of wonder to find a preacher very ready in the use of language, and yet making no headway in his chosen profession. In more than one case the explanation has been found in a dislike of study and reading on his part. To talk has been with him as easy as to drift. To study—well, he has been unwilling to pull against the current, and he has failed.

To pull against the current develops muscle, lung and nerve. It increases the power of resistance and endurance. To do the thing we dislike because we ought to do it, is to give the will the place it deserves to occupy. It is to make conscience a master, and make us conscious of our own power.

The hills of God are up stream, not down. The mount of victory is never reached by drifting. The way of success lies in the "pull;" not the vulgar "pull" of the financier and politician, but the pull against the current.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Heights of Prosperity.

Believer, remember, heights of prosperity are safe, if only God be with you, and the vale of adversity is healthful to the soul, if God takes you down into it.—Gordon Hall.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JULY 7 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: God Feeds Israel in Egypt, Ex. 16:1-15—Golden Text, John 6:21—Memory Verse, 4—Commentary.

The charm of the history of the people of Israel as it is portrayed in the Scriptures lies largely in its humanness. Israel is continually doing that which we are expectant men would do, under like circumstances, everywhere and in all time. Israel is human in her righteousness and in her sinning, in her wisdom and in her folly. The lesson for to-day shows her humanness in no unmistakable fashion. Out in the wilderness, tried and troubled with their disappointments and sufferings, the children of Israel are an example to us all and a photograph of us all. It was only yesterday, so to say, that they had praised God for His deliverance and favor. Now they look with yearning upon the fleshpots of Egypt. They were eager for liberty, but not so eager to pay the price. They were glad to have the help of Jehovah. They were not so happy to have the proving of Jehovah applied to their manhood. They show us what we ought not to do in like circumstances. They show us also what we quite generally do when we are face to face with analogous problems, disappointments and trials.

Israel was overjoyed when, in the providence of Jehovah, she was delivered out of the hand of Pharaoh and divinely led toward the land of Jehovah's promise. But when the hosts of Pharaoh threatened in the rear, Israel doubted the providence and ability of God and the wisdom of His appointed leaders. When Israel saw the hosts of Pharaoh strewn dead upon the seashore sands, Israel was glad and sang praises unto the Most High. But when water failed to come just when Israel wanted it to come, when fodder and food failed just when Israel wanted it to abound, then Israel cursed her leaders, questioned the leading of God, looked back upon the leeks and garlic and onions of Egypt, sighed for slavery with plenty. Then Israel was haunted with the fear of starvation. And this was human. It was typical of humanity.

The lesson shows us also what is the wonderful providence of God for His people even when things seem blackest to them. It must have appeared quite discouraging to Israel since they were in such a state of mind that they desired Egypt with its many hardships in preference to the wilderness with its hope of liberty. They must have been pretty hungry and hope must have all but fled. And it doesn't take hope long to flee in the presence of an empty stomach. But when the prospect was darkest so far as they were able to see then was God at hand, ready to help them and inspire them. To be sure God did not help them out of their difficulty just in the way that they desired or expected to be helped. The help was no less effective, however. The manna was an unknown quantity to them. But it was satisfying.

Israel is not the only people that has had to go through a wilderness and through hardship and through suffering to achieve liberty. And it is not only the nation that has to travel the same long road. Many an individual has had an analgous experience. The way out of national suffering and hardship, the way out of individual and national sin and distress, is a road that has its trials, its sorrows, its disappointments, its provings, all of which are as thoroughgoing and as real as were the trials that beset and tested Israel. But wherever the nation or the individual has trusted God and been amenable to His will and followed His commands there the providence and the leading of God has been marvelously manifest. God led Israel ahead in comfort and security all the time that Israel obeyed Him and thoroughly trusted Him. Their sorrows came when they doubted and disobeyed God. And so it is with every nation and with every individual. Just so long as we obey God and trust Him we move ahead.

This lesson has a profound spiritual significance. The trials of the sinner as he moves up out of the land of spiritual bondage through the wilderness of evil and temptation toward the promised land of the new Jerusalem are in their own way as real as were the trials of Israel in the desert. While he trusts in God and does God's will his way is made plain, the evidences of God's shepherding are visible to his spiritual faculties. When he shuts his eyes to the leading of God he is afraid. When he is more obsessed with the contemplation of the difficulties that confront and assail him than with the vision of Him who guards his soul he is a troubled man. But when he trusts God and never loses sight of Him even in his hours of sorest trial then is he always sure, then is he always hopeful. For he knows that God will always provide that spiritual manna which is meat and drink and strength and courage to his soul.

We are all human after the manner of the chosen people of God. The danger is that we shall forget God when His providences seem to us to fail. The danger is that we shall look back as did Lot's wife and the children of Israel upon lands that we have left behind us. That danger we cannot too well avoid. We cannot minimize its effect. Let us guard against it. Let us always hope in God, who is the health of our countenance and our God.

JUDGE LOVING NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

Verdict of Jury at Houston, Va., Upholds the Unwritten Law.

OFFENSE JUSTIFIES THE KILLING

Jurymen Admit That the Plea of Emotional Insanity Did Not Affect Their Decision — The Defendant Congratulated.

Houston, Va.—After being in the jury room one hour the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of former Judge William G. Loving, of Nelson County, the manager of the Virginia estate of Thomas F. Ryan, who was placed on trial here before the Circuit Court of Halifax County, for the murder of Theodore Estes, the son of Sheriff M. K. Estes, of Nelson County. Judge Loving shot and killed young Estes on the afternoon of April 22 at Oakridge, following a buggy ride that Estes had taken with the judge's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Loving, who told her father that her escort had drugged and assaulted her.

The verdict is a complete vindication of Virginia's "unwritten" or "higher" law. Members of the jury admit that the plea of emotional insanity had nothing to do with the verdict they rendered.

"Judge Loving did just what any Virginian would have done under similar circumstances," one member of the jury said. "We rendered the verdict we did because we in Virginia believe in preserving the sanctity of our homes and the honor of our women."

Scores rushed up to congratulate Judge Loving and Miss Loving as they withdrew from the court room, but when they walked to the hotel none of the curious sought to follow them. The Estes faction is distressed over the verdict, not so much because they are vindictive as because the verdict casts an imputation of guilt on the dead man.

Collateral evidence touching his culpability was excluded, and it was this ruling which scored the victory for Judge Loving. Friends of the dead man still adhere to the belief that he in no way wronged the girl.

Counsel for Judge Loving upon being interviewed in this connection said: "The conclusion of the jury to the effect that no assault was committed was absolutely correct."

Miss Loving will leave for a visit to friends in a distant State in order to escape notoriety.

WOMEN SAVE BIG DAM.

Work Till Daylight Stopping Leak at Denver, Col.

Denver, Col.—Mrs. M. J. Reed and the Misses Knight, Reed and McGill prevented the breaking of the dam of the great Wheatland Reservoir, which holds the largest artificial body of water in the State. The women discovered an alarming leak and telephoned for men, then took a team and went to the dam.

While two hauled hay two others packed it into the crevasse and shoveled dirt upon it. After throwing in eleven loads of hay and working like beavers until daylight they were relieved by men, who finished the repairs and averted what would probably have been a disaster.

A life prisoner in a Belgian prison has married the daughter of his jailor. Here is one wife who knows where her husband is and what he is doing.

A furniture polish agent is operating and it behooves the people to be prepared for him ere he fleeces them. His trick is to give a demonstration of his wonderful polishing fluid. It works like magic, but if you invest he substitutes a worthless polish. He charges 75 cents for the fake.

One of of nature's queerest stunts is now noticed for the first time in sections of Summerset county, where rye promises to ripseveral weeks in advance of wheat, reversing what has heretofore been regarded as a natural law. As a rule, Somerset farmers harvest their wheat in July and rye in August, but this season rye is several laps ahead of wheat.

Harry Lopeman, a farmer near Williamstown, N. J., is locked up in jail and left without food or water, as the authorities declare he should be given the same treatment he inflicted on his stock. He left his horse without food or water for a week. His chickens and pigeons died, and a pig was leaning against a fence exhausted when the constable fonnd it.

The man who says nothing about another unless he can say something good is much more likely to be a good citizen and a good friend than the man who feels it is a part of his job to keep telling tales out of school or criticising other men. The world is so small that he cannot tell when his words will come home to roost. Sometimes they come home when home is not prepared to receive them.

Headstones for the graves of old soldiers and sailors will be supplied free on application to the quartermaster general of the United States army, at Washington, D. C. and sent to any address. Heretofore the headstones were furnished by the county commissioners, but the system was recently changed. The application must be made only on the first days of January, July and October.

Shad have been known to be caught in the Juniata river at points a short distance west of Harrisburg, but never as far west as Ryde until a few days ago. Martin Bell, son of Judge Bell, of Hollidaysburg, and Wm Woodcock, son of Attorney W. L. Woodcock, made the haul. They are camping at the Juniata Fishing club house at Ryde and while out fishing for minnows cought two young shad, each about eight or ten inches long.

Between the years 1881 and 1900 the aggregate number of Germans who migrated to the United States annually was 142,000. Last year only 37,000 came, which seems to show very conclusively for the time being at least that German immigration to this country is largely on the decline. There is all the greater cause for regret when we consider who the remaining arrivals are. We would be quite willing to exchange ten of them for one German farmer.

FOURTH-CLASS POSTMASTERS to ORGANIZE.

Some time ago F. W. Jameson, of Ashton, Iowa, president of the National League of fourth-class postmosters of the United States, appointed Francis W. Archey, of Pennsylvania Furnace, this county to be treasurer of the Pennsylvania branch of the order, which is now in process of more general organization. Mr. Archey was in Huntingdon a few days ago, in company with Porter W. Richardson, postmaster, of Birmingham who has joined Mr. Archey in the organization of a Huntingdon county branch. A meeting will be held in arbitration room of the court house on Thursday, July, 4, at 1 p. m., to which all the fourth-class postmasters of the county are cordially invited. As the department at Washington approves of the organization, it is hoped that the postmasters of the county will be here in full force on the day fixed for the meeting.

THE CASH PLAN.

If every merchant would do a cash busniness it would be a blessing to humanity. As a general rule the man who can get credit abuses the privilege. If he had to pay cash he would learn to economize and would finally learn to live within his means, which a good many are not doing in these halycon days of prosperity, spending the entire amount of their checks and more too, long before it is earned and then when the "rainy day" arrives it finds them without the where-with to keep hunger and wolf from from the door. A grocer claims he could do business for cash on half the money he has now invested and could afford to sell his goods cheaper. Not only do those who pay have to pay for what they consume themselves, but they help make up the loss for those who never pay. The cash system is a very desireable one and its general adoption would mean the end of unlimited worry and trouble to all concerned.

GREAT SECRETS OF SUCCESS.

A man with a mania for answering advertisements learned that by sending $100 to a Yankee he could get a cure for drunkenness. It was to "take the pledge and keep it."

He sent 50 cents to find out how to raise turnips successfully. He found out: "Just take hold of the tops and lift."

He wished to marry and sent stamps to a Chicago firm for information as how to make an impression. The answer was: "Sit down on a pan of dough."

He learned "How to double your money in six months," being advised to convert his money into bills and fold them.

He sent for twelve useful household articles and got a package of needles.

He sent $1.00 to find out "how to get rich." "Work hard and never spend a cent."

His brother wrote to find out how to write without pen and ink. He was told to use a lead pencil.

He paid one dollar to learn how to live without work and was told on a postal card, "Fish for easy marks as we do."

Endure—to Win.

Accustom yourself to submit on all and every occasion on the most minute no less than on the most important circumstances of life to a small present evil to obtain a greater distant good. This will give decision, tone and energy to the mind, which thus disciplined will often reap victory from defeat and honor from repulse. Having acquired this invaluable habit of rational preference and just appreciation, start for that prize that endureth forever; you will have little left to learn. The advantages you will possess over common minds will be those of the lanista over the tyro and of the veteran over the recruit.—Rev. C. C. Colton.

Danger of Self Indulgence.

One of the worst perils of Christian lives lies in the line of self indulgence. We take too good care of ourselves. We keep ourselves back from hard tasks and stern self denials. Consequently we do not find the joy that is possible in Christian living.

Special Promise to Christians.

Christians are brethren. With a community of interests, they have common needs and wants. Here is our Lord's special promise to them when they meet together to ask what they in common desire. There are promises to private prayer, to family prayer, to public prayer. This promise is to the symphony of prayer. Giving the smallest number that could form a union, Christ gives the largest encouragement to united prayer. Very sweet is the assurance of His presence then. That is enough. He is the shekinah in this holy of holies. It is He who binds the saints together when they say "our." When He is one of a praying company, what wonder that "it shall be done for them?" As Westcott says, "Their prayer is only some form of teaching transformed into a supplication, and so it will necessarily be heard." They ask in His name. That pleads His authority and His wisdom. Christ has omnipotence and omniscience. We have neither. It were not to be desired if this large promise offered the first and not the second. Let us therefore have faith and "keep not silence till He establish Jerusalem."—John Reid.

Egyptians Hoard Gold.

Lord Cromer states that Egyptians have a propensity for hoarding gold. A native, who recently died, left $400,000 stored in gold in his house, and many of them possessed of wealth will borrow money at interest to conceal the fact. Large quantities of gold coin are annually melted in Egypt and converted into ornaments.

NO RELIEF FOR 15 YEARS.

All Sorts of Remedies Failed to Cure Eczema—Sufferer Tried Cuticura and is Entirely Cured.

"I have had eczema for over fifteen years, and have tried all sorts of remedies to relieve me, but without avail. I stated my case to one of my friends and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I bought them with the thought that they would be unsuccessful, as with the others. But after using them for a few weeks I noticed to my surprise that the irritation and peeling of the skin gradually decreased, and finally, after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment it disappeared entirely. I feel now like a new man, and I would gladly recommend these remedies to all who are afflicted with skin diseases. David Blum, Box A, Bedford Station, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1905."

Western Farm Values Increased.

The value of the farm lands along the Union Pacific increased by more than $2,500,000,000 in the five years 1900 to 1905. The United States census figures gave an aggregate value for seventeen States in 1905 as $8,241,782,864, while in 1900 it was only $5,692,230,872. This is an advance of nearly forty-five per cent.

By States the percentage of increase vary from 119 per cent. for Wyoming to twenty-four per cent. for California. Other records are: Washington, sixty-eight per cent.; New Mexico, sixty-five per cent.; Texas, sixty-one per cent.; Idaho, fifty-eight per cent.; and Nebraska, fifty-seven per cent.

A recent bulletin of the Union Pacific Railroad shows that the hay and grain farms increased in value by $785,500,000; live stock farms by $1,000,000; fruit farms by $51,000,000; vegetable farms by $32,000,000, and general farm lands by $165,000,000.

Colorado's sugar beet farms increased in value twelve per cent., and in Oregon the principal increase, fifty-eight per cent., is also in sugar beet lands. In Washington two-fifths of the income from the lands showing the greatest increase (seventy-five per cent.) is from fruit. Vegetable growing is the best payer in Montana; of the lands increased fifty-eight per cent. in value two-fifths of the income is from that class.

COFFEE COMPLEXION

Many Ladies Have Poor Complexions From Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark colored blotches on my face and body. I had been drinking it for a long while and these blotches gradually appeared, until finally they became permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself.

"I formerly had as fine a complexion as one could ask for.

"When I became convinced that coffee was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked it very much, and have since that time used it in place of coffee.

"I am thankful to say I am not nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good as it was years ago. It is very plain that coffee caused the trouble."

Most bad complexions are caused by some disturbance of the stomach and coffee is the greatest disturber of digestion known. Almost any woman can have a fair complexion if she will leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee and nutritious, healthy food in proper quantity. Postum furnishes certain elements from the natural grains from the field that Nature uses to rebuild the nervous system and when that is in good condition, one can depend upon a good complexion as well as a good healthy body. GOOD FELLOWS ALL, AND EQUALS, AT ONE COLLEGE

Princeton University to Adopt a Radical Plan of Social Democracy, Doing Away With the Individual Clubs--Live and Eat Together at Residential Quads--Present Club Life, Says President Wilson, is Demoralizing and Unwholesome.

Princeton, N. J.—President Woodrow Wilson has just instituted a most radical and complete reorganization of social life at Princeton University—one that marks a departure from the other big universities and which will be studied with deep interest as to its working out.

In brief, it aims to absorb the various college clubs into what are termed "Residential Quads," where there shall be good fellowship and closer intimacy between faculty, upper class men and "freshies."

The system will establish a real democracy, with each "Quad" occupying dormitories, dining rooms and rooms for social enjoyment in common. Instead of the rivalry and bitter feeling engendered by club elections and rejections, there will be unity and a desire for the common good—true loyalty to the university.

President Wilson in one phrase summarizes the plan: "To associate the four classes in a generally organic manner and make of the university a real social body, to the exclusion of cliques and separate class social organizations to give to the university the kind of common consciousness which apparently comes from the closer sort of social contact, to be had only outside the classroom, and most easily to be got about a common table, and in the contacts of a common life."

The Board of Trustees of the university have adopted the main parts embodied in the plan and it will probably be put into effect shortly.

Club life, as it exists to-day at the university, is demoralizing, says President Wilson, "not because there is in the clubs any cynical indifference to study, but because the social activities into which their members are naturally and inevitably drawn are very many and very delightful and very engrossing, and study has to take its chance in competition with them.

"These influences," he continued, "are splitting classes into factions and endangering that class spirit upon which we depend for our self-government and for the transmission of most of the loyal impulses of the university. The 'politics' of candidacy for membership in the upper class club not only produce a constant and very demoralizing distraction from university duties in freshman and sophomore years, and inforce all sorts of questionable customs, but they cut deeper even than that.

"Group rivalries break the solidarity of the classes. The younger classes are at no point made conscious of the interests of the university; their whole thought is concentrated upon individual ambitions, upon means of preference, upon combinations to obtain selfish individual ends. They strive against this when they become juniors and seniors, but they do not strive against it successfully, and when they are freshmen and sophomores they do not strive against it at all.

"The present system of our life is artificial and unwholesome."

COLLEGE SWEETHEARTS TELL WHY THEY LOVE

Dr. Hall Finds Eyes, Hair, Size, and Even Feet, Are Chief Among Attractions--Race Suicide Because College Women Fail to Marry.

Boston, Mass.—Precisely what it is—what attribute or physical characteristic—in the youth or maiden, the man or woman, that most attracts one of the opposite sex, is a problem of which Dr. G. Stanley Hall, professor of psychology in and president of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has set out to find the solution. To this end he has taken a census of young lovers, with a view to learning what in each case has most endeared to him or her the particular object of their affection.

It was Dr. Hall who recently declared fifty per cent. of college women failed to marry, thus contributing to race suicide. The complete result of this census of lovers Dr. Hall has not yet given to the public, but he has made known an abstract of what he has learned. With hundreds of lovers heard from Dr. Hall states that the characteristics specified by them are, in the order of their frequency, as follows:

Eyes, hair, size or stature, feet, brows, complexion, cheeks, form of head, throat, ears, chin, hands, neck, nose, finger nails and contour of face.

Which is to say that more of those lovers interrogated have found the loved one's eyes or hair the chief attraction than anything else.

The women replying to Dr. Hall's questions have also specified these charms in the men they loved best:

Regular teeth, broad shoulders and white teeth, and most popular among the men have been long lashes and arched brows.

According to some of those replying, a retrousse nose, freckles and a long neck have been the chief charms.

The voice cuts an important figure among the charms. With some it is a high voice; with others, a low voice. Even a lisp has been stated as a charm. Laughter, carriage, gait, gesture, movements of the eye, pose of head and shoulders have also been specified in the replies.

COLLEGE GIRLS AGREE NOT TO WED POOR MEN

Indiana Maidens Organize to Insist on Husbands Having at Least $4000 --Swains Must Furnish Documentary Proof.

Columbia, Ind. — Young college women in Columbia, Jasonville and Hymera have formed what they call the "Young Ladies' Protective Societies," and plan to establish branches all over the States.

The members will insist on knowing how prospective husbands are fixed financially, and will refuse to be courted by young men who cannot furnish a satisfactory rating.

The young man who would woo a member of the society must furnish documentary proof that he has goods and chattels to the value of $2000, and carries a life insurance policy for at least $2000. With $2000 in available assets and $2000 in futures, the Y. L. P. S. girls will pay attention to proposals.

The promoters of the organization say they have observed that the most frequent cause of unhappy marriages is poverty.

BUSINESS AT ITS BEST.

Careful Canvass Shows Commerce Climbing as Stocks Drop.

New York City.—After a careful canvass by a Tribune representative of the large commercial and financial interests of New York to obtain at first hand an accurate insight into the business conditions of the country, it can be announced that there are no signs of a diminution of the prosperity which the United States has been enjoying, that the volume of business for the first six months of this year has been greater than for the same time in 1906, that failures have been fewer, and that the prospects for the last six months of 1907 are full of encouragement. There can, of course, be no safer gauge of the commerce of the country at large than the condition of business in New York, the great distributing centre.

Among the manufacturers approached, each, of course, discusses the business situation from the standpoint of his own industry, but the basis for the conclusion that there is no danger of a reversal of conditions is the views of about a dozen large firms, representing as many industries, who express the same optimistic prediction of an era of even greater prosperity.

Contrary to what appears almost general belief, the inactivity of the stock market has not had any great effect on the mercantile industries. Merchants who do not include optimism and pessimism in their stock of trade have not only not been affected by the stagnant condition of Wall Street, but apparently are little interested in it. Of far greater import to them is the wage rate, which, the Tribune learns from reliable sources, has been higher for the last six months in nearly all branches of industry than ever before.

MRS. DE PASSE OF NEW YORK CITY

"I Consulted Several Physicians, but they Did Me No Good. Peruna and Manalin Helped Me."

MRS. ALINE DePASSE.

Mrs. Aline DePasse, 776 E. 165th St., New York, N. Y., writes:

"It gives me pleasure to testify to the curative qualities of Peruna and Manalin.

"I was afflicted for over seven years with catarrh of the head, throat and digestive organs. I consulted many physicians, but they did me no good.

"One day I happened to read some testimonials in your Peruna almanac. I decided to try Peruna and Manalin. I bought a bottle of each, and after taking them for a week I noticed a change for the better. So I kept it up, and after using twelve bottles I was perfectly cured.

"I also gave the medicine to my children and they had the same beneficial result. I would never be without these remedies in the house.

"I highly recommend Peruna and Manalin to all my friends, and in fact to everybody."

Miss Mildred Grey, 110 Weimar St., Appleton, Wis., writes:

"It gives me pleasure to recommend Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I had this disease for a number of years, and could not enjoy a mouthful of food that I ate. It was indeed a great relief when I hit upon Peruna, and obtained decided results from the first. I took six bottles before I felt entirely cured of my trouble, but I had an aggravated case."

MISS LOVING TELLS OF ESTES' WRONG

Virginia Girl Testifies to Save Father's Life.

THE WHISKY STUPEFIED HER

Victim of the Fatal Buggy Ride Tells the Story to Save Her Father's Life, Who is on Trial For the Murder.

Houston, Va.—Miss Elizabeth Loving, forced to the alternative of sacrificing her reputation or sending her father to the gallows, has made her choice. She went on the stand at the trial of her father, Judge William G. Loving, for the murder of Theodore Estes, and swore that Estes had assaulted her.

Judge Loving killed Estes because she had told such a story. Since then it has been asserted that the story was false; that Estes did not treat her as she told her father he did; that she became intoxicated, and that to excuse herself she told the Judge the story which caused him to kill young Estes. There has been much speculation whether she would go on the stand and admit that Estes did not treat her dishonorably. That speculation she disposed of by her testimony.

Only once in a recital lasting almost an hour did Miss Loving give way to her emotion. That was when she told the jury of her confession to her father on the day following the ride. She broke down completely, sobbed convulsively, and for a time it looked as though she would not be able to go on, but with an effort controlled herself and continued her story, and later gained courage enough to even fence with the Commonwealth's attorney.

Her father was on the stand earlier in the day, being the first witness called when court met. His recital was dramatic. He told of his love for his children, and after giving way to tears, he told the jury without a show of emotion that he ordered his buggy and took his shotgun to put to death the man who had mistreated his daughter.

The Loving case is strangely similar to the Thaw case. But while the defense is the "unwritten law" combined with emotional insanity, the country doctors who were put on the stand did not talk of brainstorms or exaggerated ego, but in plain English said they believed that several attacks of delirium tremens through which Judge Loving had passed had so weakened his brain that for the time being he was insane. As in the Thaw case, everything hinges in this trial on whether or not the jury believes that Elizabeth Loving told her father the story which he says she did, and which resulted in his killing young Estes. The truth or falsity of the story is not material, according to the defense.

Wood Bouldin, the Commonwealth's attorney, a courtly, dignified Southerner, who, while asking Miss Loving the most embarrassing questions, was skilfully leading her away from her story, and apologizing for it, announced that he intended to prove by the witnesses of the defense that Miss Loving's story is absolutely false and that Theodore L. Estes was never guilty of an impropriety toward her.

HURLED FROM AUTO; KILLED.

Benjamin F. Lord Dies From Heart Failure Occasioned by Fright.

Boston, Mass.—Escaping without a single scratch as he, with three companions, was hurled thirty feet in the air when the automobile in which they were traveling was struck by an outward bound Providence train at Woods Crossing, three miles above the Franklin station, Benjamin F. Lord, of Waltham, an advertising man, landed on the ground alive and died immediately afterward from heart failure occasioned by fright.

His companions, Edward J. and Thomas F. Boyle, of No. 386 Commonwealth avenue, both merchants, were badly bruised, while the chauffeur, W. P. Roust, was severely shaken. They were able, however, to go to their homes, where they were placed in charge of a physician. The three survivors were unnerved by the tragic ending of the trip, and the effect of the shock upon Edward J. Boyle, who has been ill recently, was severe.

MOONSHINERS KILLED IN RAID

200 Men Are Routed and 30 Arrested in Piedmont, N. C.

Ten of the Mountaineers Were Killed in the Pitched Battle and Women and Children Driven From Home.

Asheville, N. C.—In a pitched battle at Piedmont, a wooded and rocky pass in the mountains ten miles from this city, a small army of revenue officers routed 200 moonshiners, who were encouraged in the battle by their wives and daughters. Ten of the moonshiners were killed and thirty were taken prisoners, with several women and a half dozen children. Four thousand gallons of whisky were seized.

The revenue army was led by J. Will Roberts, who had been planning the raid for three months. He received information that the moonshiners had gathered for the wholesale running of "mountain dew," and that the mountaineers were in such force they were prepared to resist the revenue officers. Roberts gathered men from a dozen points and led them for the mountain. The moonshiners were intrenched, expecting an attack from the front. But under cover of the darkness Roberts led his men by a circuitous route up the mountain until he was above the mountaineers. At dawn he sent a man under cover of a white flag demanding surrender, but the moonshiners, with derisive cheers, fired a volley over the head of the messenger.

The battle at once opened, and from the first went against the moonshiners. They were bewildered at the heavy fire directed against them, believing that they had not more than a small squad of revenue men to deal with. At the sound of the firing women and children came flocking from cabins all over the mountainside, and the women were insistent that the position be held. It became untenable after an hour's hard fighting, and the main body of the mountaineers, comprising 100 men, succeeded in a quick retreat. The prisoners taken were isolated in an advanced post. Five of the revenue officers were wounded, but none was killed. In all fifteen wounded men were brought to this city and are now in the hospital.

INHERITS FORTUNE, DROWNS.

Unexpected Joy and Grief For Father Probably Crazed Randle.

South Norwalk, Conn. — After learning that his father had left him $40,000, Frank C. Randle deliberately drowned himself.

It must have been that the conflict of sudden emotions, joy over his unexpected inheritance, added grief for his father's death, unbalanced Randle's mind. He was thirty-five years old, healthy, of good habits and popular in Winnipauk, his home.

His father, Joseph C. Randle, died a week before. For forty-five years he was postmaster at Winnipauk. For more than half a century he kept the country store in which the postoffice is.

Washington, Pa. — William A. Breene, a day laborer, was so overcome by the news that he had inherited an estate valued at $100,000 that he fainted. He died half an hour later in the hospital.

Passaic, N. J.—As the result of a trolley car turning down a street which it should have crossed, two young women were run down and killed here. The victims of the peculiar accident are Belle Krones and Annie Worksman, both twenty years old, and the daughters of merchants. The girls, who had been lifelong chums, were on their way home when they were struck at the corner of Passaic and Second streets.

Captain Davis Acquitted.

In the fight which followed Dr. McCoy suffered fatal wounds.

University four-oared shells, without coxswains, two miles:
1. Syracuse, 10 min. 37 1-5 sec.
2. Cornell, 10 min. 40 sec.
3. Pennsylvania, 10 min. 49 sec.
4. Columbia, 10 min. 59 3-5 sec.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Rowing four miles in the twilight down a broadening hill-ridged river, while 50,000 persons cheered deliriously, the 'varsity eights of Cornell and Columbia fought such a battle as no two racing crews ever fought before.

Cornell won by a magnificent burst of speed in the last ten strokes, the nose of her shell sweeping across the finish line three feet ahead of the New Yorkers. But from the first dip of the oars at the head of the course until the winning Ithacans dropped their sweeps and fell back, half senseless, in their victory, not twenty-five feet separated either shell, and at the end the Columbians were so close up that the great crowd on the banks thought the triumph was theirs.

Unusual picturesqueness was added to the scene by the fact that darkness closed so quickly that the glare of the great searchlight from the United States monitor Arkansas was thrown over the crews at the finish to aid the judges in their decision.

A gallant third in this wonderful heart-breaking struggle, rowed the much-vaunted Annapolis team.

All the way from the first mile post it had been anybody's race. From any part of the observation train at the finish it still seemed like anybody's race, with the majority believing that a dead heat had been rowed.

Thus for the eighth time has Cornell won the 'Varsity Challenge Cup in this the thirteenth annual contest. Yet the "big race" was only one of three, the climax of a series of water contests that held 50,000 persons on the shores of the Hudson River for more than three hours.

The first contest for the Kennedy Challenge Trophy was the race of the university fours. There were only four entered and the standing was: Syracuse, first; Cornell, second; Pennsylvania, third, and Columbia, fourth.

The second race was of the freshmen eights. It was won by the University of Wisconsin, and was the first time the boys from the Badger State have taken the Stewards' Cup since 1900. The other freshmen crews came in as follows: Syracuse, second; Pennsylvania, third; Columbia, fourth, and Cornell, fifth.

In the great throng that gathered for the race Annapolis was a general favorite. Uncle Sam did his best to cheer his sailors. He sent three monitors—the Florida, Arkansas and Nevada—up the Hudson, and they came to anchor in the morning near the line of the finish. Flags were broken out from stem to stern and made a brave showing among the gayly decorated craft which hedged the course below the bridge.

FATAL PINE BEACH FIRE.

Heavy Property Loss Outside Jamestown Exposition Grounds.

Norfolk, Va.—Six blocks of smoldering ruins mark the track of the fire which swept Pine Beach, laying low fifty hotels, saloons, eating houses and stores, destroying $200,000 worth of property, costing the lives of possibly five persons, and endangering the negro building, Inside Inn, and several State buildings within the Exposition grounds. An explosion of a gasoline stove in the rear of the Berkeley Hotel caused the fire.

Larry Harrison, a negro, was found mortally burned under the Hotel Berkeley; a man is believed to have perished in the National Club, Maryland avenue, and two women and a baby are believed to have been caught when the walls of the Hampton Roads fell in.

The Arcade, Royal Pine, Hampton Roads, Washington House, Outside Inn, Powhatan, Carolina and Berkeley hotels were among the largest buildings destroyed.

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead (with its full natural tenacity and elasticity, unimpaired by adulterants), alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint. Every keg which bears the Dutch Boy trade mark is positively guaranteed to be absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

All lead packed in 1907 bears this mark.

SHOPPING IN LONDON.

Methods of the Big Stores in the English Metropolis.

TRICKS OF THE MILLINERS.

A Ruse That Was Met by a Clever Counter Ruse—The Agitating Experiences of an American Woman Who Was Looking For Bargains.

In American shops the establishment and the customer are separate entities. The firm displays its wares; the buyers examine them and purchase or not, as they see fit.

In London it is different. The moment you enter the door of a shop you are accepted as part and parcel of its interests, a member of the family, as it were. Then a shopwalker pounces upon you and insists on knowing what you want. If you hesitate as to your reply, he plants himself squarely in front of you and waits. When, in sheer desperation (for you had intended a happy, aimless sort of looking about), you say "gloves," he grasps your arm, firmly marches you to the glove counter, seats you at it and details a salesperson to wait upon you.

All this happened to me, and in an exasperated frame of mind I bought a pair of gloves merely to keep peace in the family, but the bland and gentlemanly glove seller had no notion of letting me off so easily. He took it for granted that that first pair was simply by way of preface, and he displayed gloves of my size of all styles and colors. The very foregoneness of his conclusion that I would buy them all irritated me, and, briefly announcing that I wanted no more gloves, I paid him for the pair I had bought. Surprised and grieved beyond expression, he beckoned the shopwalker, and together they cross examined me as to why I refused to buy more gloves. Did the colors not suit me? Were the prices not reasonable? Disdaining to answer these questions, I endeavored to stalk haughtily away, but this was not allowed. More in sorrow than in anger, they told me I must wait for my bill. As the gloves were to be sent and I had given the exact change I deemed this unnecessary, but I soon found it to be one of their inexorable laws. Bills, signed and countersigned, must be waited for, no matter how trifling the purchase.

The next thing I learned was that the price asked is far from being the real selling price of the article. I cringed at the thought of offering 5 guineas for a seven guinea hat, but I soon learned that it was expected of a customer and that the marked prices were merely amounts from which to begin the dickering.

And the ruses resorted to by these wicked milliners! In Mayfair is one of the most fashionable millinery shops in the world. Over the door gilt letters spell one of the most famous Parisian names. To this shop I went for a hat. Being very canny, I expressed great interest in several hats which I knew I should not buy. At last I carelessly inquired the price of a hat which had really charmed me from the first. The price was 8 guineas. As it bore four magnificent ostrich plumes, this price was not exorbitant; but, knowing the game, I bargained.

First I asked if they would call it pounds instead of guineas. This meant a reduction in price of only 8 shillings, but the indignity (I discovered) was beyond all words. With a scathing glance the saleslady informed me that they never sold by pounds in that shop, and I stored away the knowledge for future use in swagger establishments.

Determined to beat them at their own game, I then offered 6 guineas for the hat. This was met with appropriate expressions of horrified surprise, and as a great concession 7½ guineas was proposed. I remained firm in my six guinea offer, and, after a feint of leaving the shop without buying a hat, it was reluctantly accepted.

Then followed what I considered a ruse of extreme cleverness on my part. I had been told that if I left a new hat to be sent home the milliner would change the trimming for others that looked the same, but were of inferior quality. I had been advised, therefore, on purchasing a hat to carry it away with me in order to prevent this. So I remarked on paying for this hat that as I wished to wear it that very afternoon I would take it with me, the large bandbox being easily managed in my hansom cab. The saleslady kindly agreed to this plan and sent the hat upstairs to be boxed.

After waiting fifteen minutes for the hat to return to me I began to grow suspicious, and when it did come I deliberately untied the box, removed the tissue paper wrappings and examined the hat. Sure enough, the four long, rich ostrich plumes had been removed and replaced by four others of the same color, but of a distinctly cheaper grade. I boldly declared this fact, but the saleslady haughtily denied it.

"But," said I, "look in the hat. See the stitches, hastily put in to hold these feathers. They were not there when the hat left me."

"Ah," she said, "merely a few stitches to fasten a bit of trimming that was loose!"

And nothing remained for me but to take the hat and depart. I could not prove my case. I could get no redress. But I learned, when buying a hat, to pin it firmly on my head and walk away, leaving my own old hat to be sent home.

I think such an episode would not occur in any reputable shop in America. —Carolyn Wells in Woman's Home Companion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 7.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How our lives may be consecrated to our country.—Isa. lxii, 1-12.

One hundred and thirty-one years ago on last Thursday, July 4, the Declaration of American Independence was signed, and the aspirations of the colonists for liberty and self government made a mighty stride. In war, under the leadership of Washington, the colonists gained their independence, which they had declared justly and rightly theirs. Their ambition was not simply to be independent of England, but to establish on our shores a great nation. They were men "with empires in their brains," and they aimed to work out their inward thoughts into a great nation, one that should be "a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord and a royal diadem in the hand of God." This was the dream of Isaiah for Israel in the land of Babylon. He wanted Jerusalem restored and to be adorned with righteousness and salvation that should shine to other nations. He wanted the people prepared for the part they were to take in the upbuilding and preservation of the nation. And these ambitions were afterward fulfilled. So they have been in the history of America, beyond all conceptions of the founders of the nation, and the duty still remains for the people to do their part in sustaining and advancing our national life.

No American citizen should feel it a burden or an irksome task to consecrate his life to his country. In no other country are the ideals so high; in no other is so much liberty enjoyed; in no other are the opportunities of advancement for the individual as great; in no other are the people so closely bound together and the interests of all so nearly one. The enemies of the nation are the enemies of all, and the ship of state is never without its dangers. Today in our land the vast accumulations of wealth by the few is a menace to our land. The rapid spread of socialism, which in some cases at least is but a cover for anarchism, is another danger. The complicated questions concerning the regulation of the vast enterprises of our land are no light matter. All fraud and dishonesty must be removed from the business world, but great caution must be exercised not to disturb legitimate business or legitimate methods of business. The new enterprises in which our nation is engaged, such as the Panama canal, call for the heartiest support of the entire nation; the evident tendency to centralize the government and to resurrect the dead issue of state rights in their relation to the central government is a subject of a most serious character, and every true and patriotic American owes it to his country to keep abreast with the times, to keep in touch with the issues of the day and to give his best thought and judgment to the solution of the hard problems, as well as to enjoy the unparalleled prosperity with which God has blessed us.

In consecrating our lives to our country we should stand everywhere and always for national righteousness, for "righteousness exalteth a nation;" we should respect officeholders for the sake of the office, though reserving the right to criticise any official's action; we should be ready at any time to defend the flag against any foe, and above all, as Christians, we should do our best to possess the entire land for Christ. A Christless and Godless nation is doomed to destruction.

Characteristic of Secretary Shaw.

It was characteristic of William Shaw, the new general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, to acknowledge a message of personal congratulation in these words:

"I appreciate that there are many things that I cannot do, but the one thing that I am sure that I can do is to use every ounce of strength that I have for the cause of Christian Endeavor, which has meant everything to me."

A Miracle.

Here is a striking sentence from a Hindoo Christian Endeavorer: "If a thousand heads and eyes are made one, is not that a great miracle? But that is what is being done through Christ in bringing together men of every sort in unity with Him."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

July 7: "Christian Citizenship." Public affairs a divine trust.—Rom. xiii, 1-7.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Dan. ii, 20, 21; I Pet. ii, 13-17.

This theme is a timely one for study by the league. The attention of all classes of people is being drawn more than ever before to the betterment of social conditions, the fuller recognition of the rights of wage earners, the regulation of corporations and railroads in the interests of the general public, the better government of municipalities, commonwealths and the nation.

To many close observers of the signs of the times it appears that society is on the eve of a vast readjustment. Social questions have been studied in recent years more than in all the preceding centuries. There is reason for this in the profound changes which have taken place in the condition of the common people of all civilized lands during the past hundred years. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that we are in the very midst of a mighty social and political revolution which has already shifted much which was supposed to be immovable and may alter much more. Some of the sanest thinkers predict that society will be reconstructed on broader and more equitable lines which shall secure the well being of all members of the community.

A flood of talk and writing on this subject is pouring forth in Europe and in this country. All sorts of theories are abroad and are finding ardent advocates. Nearly all have more or less to do with a new form of government control of various matters. The nature, powers and limitations of government are receiving the closest scrutiny. Old beliefs are fast giving way to ideas which but a few years since received scant recognition.

A significant fact in this whole agitation is that many of the most influential advocates of the rights of the workingman and lower classes of society have no sympathy with the Christian church in any form. Not a few even charge that Christians have taken little or no interest in this movement for the uplifting and betterment of men. This charge is unfair, because in nearly every community the local church is active in the relief of distress of every kind, far more than is known by those who are not closely identified with the work.

The most hopeful sign which we see regarding this whole matter is the increasing interest which Christian people are taking in it.

The first thing which needs to be settled is the real source of the powers of government. On this point we need to stand immovable. All government of man derives its authority from God. This truth is imbedded in human nature and is ineradicable. All men have rights and duties, and the province of government is to secure these in righteousness, justice and mercy. Every Christian is bound to honor the powers in authority. In this land especially it becomes the duty of every Christian to be intelligent on all matters of public interest, to bear his full share of public burdens and with inflexible integrity throw all possible influence against public corruption of every sort.

It has been said that the league has not given so much attention to good citizenship discussion as some other young people's societies. However this may be, we cannot decide, but it would be well if every chapter would enter heartily upon a closer study of this subject as connected with Christian duty. Loyalty to Jesus Christ and true patriotism demand of us the practice and propagation of Christian citizenship of the highest type. The danger from false views and practices can be counteracted only by setting forth the true and right.

True Beauty.

That is not the most perfect beauty which in public would attract the greatest observation; nor even that which the statuary would admit to be a faultless piece of clay, kneaded up with blood. But that is true beauty which has not only a substance, but a spirit—a beauty that we must intimately know, justly to appreciate—a beauty lighted up in conversation, where the mind shines, as it were, through its casket, where, in the language of the poet, "the eloquent blood spoke in her cheeks and so distinctly wrought that we might almost say her body thought," an order and a mode of beauty which, the more we know, the more we accuse ourselves for not having before discovered those thousand graces which bespeak that their owner has a soul. This is that beauty that never cloys, possessing charms as resistless as the fascinating Egyptian for whom Antony wisely paid the bauble of the world—a beauty like the rising of his own Italian suns, always enchanting, never the same.—Rev. C. C. Colton.

Open the Door.

Open the door; let in the air!
The winds are sweet, and the flowers are fair.
Joy is abroad in the world today;
If your door is wide, it may come this way.
Open the door!

Open the door; let in the sun.
He hath a smile for every one;
He hath made of the raindrops gold and gems;
He may change our tears to diadems.
Open the door!

Open the door of the soul; let in Strong, pure thoughts which shall banish sin.
They will grow and bloom with a grace divine,
And their fruit shall be sweeter than that of the vine.
Open the door!

Open the door to the heart; let in Sympathy sweet for stranger and kin.
It will make the halls of the heart so fair
That angels may enter unaware.
Open the door!

Our Chance.

"Take every chance you can possibly get to be kind; because some day there may be no more chances," writes Margaret Deland. This world is our chance to help our fellows. If we neglect to do it, even if we get to heaven, there will be no more tears there to be dried, no wrongs to redress, no quick, loving help needed. We shall have missed our chance and forever.—Forward.

Prayer.

The extreme of offering long, wearying prayers once in vogue has been forsaken and we fear in many instances has gone to the opposite extreme. It is noticeable that many of our brethren appear to be in such a hurry to get through with that exercise as to disappoint those present who have a feeling of devotion and who desire to supplicate the Lord for His favor and the inspiration of the Holy Ghost to guide the speakers and enlighten and comfort the congregation. The preachers and all who are present need praying for. This does not require a long invocation, nor is the throne of grace moved upon by "much speaking." At the same time the spirit of prayer ought not to be quenched nor undue haste be exhibited. The purpose of prayer, the particular occasion when it is offered, the circumstances surrounding the assembly, should be taken into consideration, and there should be no hurry or formality or rigid rule to prevent a free flow of the spirit of supplication.—Desert News.

Which Road?

If you could go back to the forks of the road—
Back the long miles you have carried the load,
Back to the place where you had to decide
By this way or that through your life to abide:
Back of the sorrow and back of the care,
Back to the place where the future was fair—
If you were there now, a decision to make,
Oh, pilgrim of sorrow, which road would you take?

Then, after you'd trodden the other long track,
Suppose that again to the forks you went back,
After you found that its promises fair
Were but a delusion that led to a snare—
That the road you first traveled with sighs and unrest,
Though dreary and rough, was most graciously blest
With balm for each bruise and charm for each ache—
Oh, pilgrim of sorrow, which road would you take?
